What is the Anticovid Technologies Day?

It is a Virtual Congress with an international focus where research projects and already commercialised products that have been developed to deal with the situation generated by the pandemic will be presented.

The day is structured in the morning session, where we will learn about the projects and research being carried out in Universities and R&D Centres in Spain and Europe. And in the afternoon we will explore those new technological products that are already on the market to fight the pandemic.
